

The background of the slide is a dark blue space-themed pattern with a grid of light blue lines and small white stars. A large white rectangle is centered on the slide. The word "movies" is written in a bold, italicized, blue font in the center of the white rectangle. The corners of the white rectangle are decorated with school supplies: top-left has a red apple, a blue globe, a yellow ruler, and a green pencil; top-right has a yellow ruler and a pair of orange scissors; bottom-right has a green pencil, a red glue stick, a red apple, and a blue globe.

movies

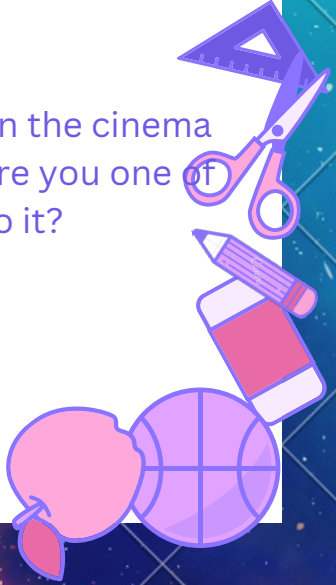

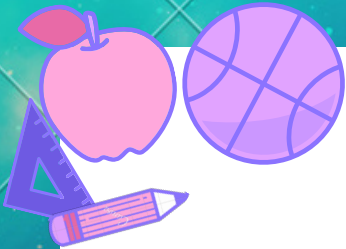

Do you like to watch trailers? Have you seen a trailer recently that made you really want to watch the film?

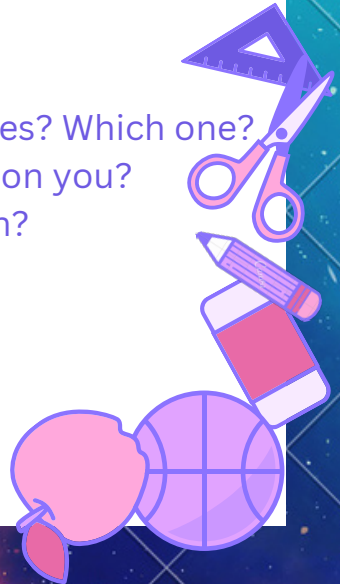

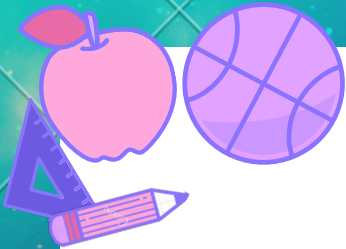

Why do you think some people stay in the cinema until the end credits have finished? Are you one of those people? Why do you do it?

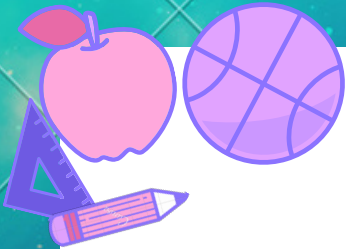

Have you ever binge-watched a TV series? Which one?
Did it have any negative effects on you?
Why do people binge watch?

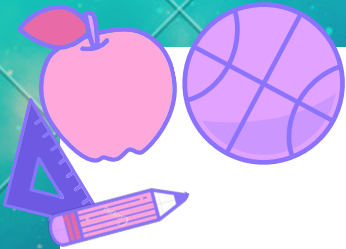

Have you ever watched a film or TV spinoff? What did you think of it? Can you think of any other famous spinoffs?

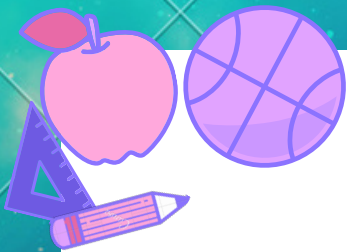

What do you think of the idea that sequels are never as good as the original? do you think this is true? Can you think of a sequel that was better than the original?

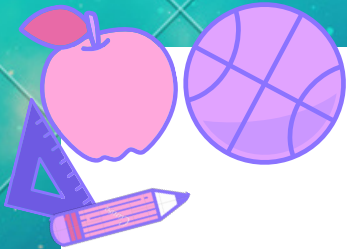

Can you think of an example of a film that was a big flop? Why do you think it was so unsuccessful?

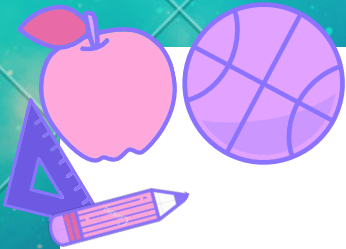

Can you think of an example of a film that could be described as a blockbuster? What do you think made it so successful?

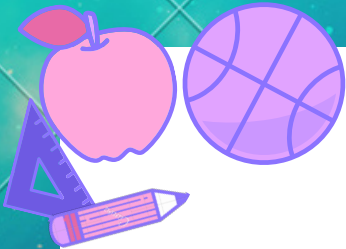

Have you ever watched a biopic? Who was it about?
Did you like it? If you had to make a biopic, who would you choose to feature?

Do you prefer to watch films on the big screen or the small screen? Why? What are the positives and negatives of each?

Do you like watching documentaries? Why or why not?
Can you think of a famous documentary?

